

Try mixing fitted furniture with free-standing pieces

FEEL FREE

Free-standing furniture offers the freedom to change the look and feel of your kitchen

FREE-STANDING furniture can create a more relaxed and less structured feeling in the kitchen, whether combined with fitted cabinets or solely a standalone piece.

Kim Whinnett, Company Director at Barnes of Ashburton, recognises the perks of custom-made pieces, and advises mixing fitted furniture with free-standing pieces to move away from the uniform look.

She says: "One of the main benefits of free-standing furniture simply, is that it can be moved!"

"This means that every so often you can move the furniture about and achieve what feels like a completely new room. Bespoke cabinetry in particular can inject both personality and functionality into a room.

"Home owners can therefore maximise the space within their rooms with their own style and character to get the most out of their homes." ♦

Barnes Of Ashburton

24A West Street, Ashburton, TQ13 7DU

T: 01364 653613

E: info@barnesofashburton.co.uk

W: barnesofashburton.co.uk

Bespoke cabinetry injects personality and functionality

Free-standing pieces create a relaxed feel

A classic look for a contemporary home